SELECTED HIKING NEAR SHADOWCLIFF

The following hikes are within walking or driving distance of the lodge. To access Rocky Mountain National Park trailheads, simply follow our driveway back down to West Portal Road. Take a right and begin walking up the hillside. There is parking at the North Inlet Trailhead if you wish to drive.

Please be sure to visit the Park website for current trail and area closures and other regulations:
<https://www.nps.gov/romo/learn/fire-information-and-regulations.htm>

Tonahutu Trail (Tonahutu Trailhead)

This forest trail is accessed off of West Portal Road near the Grand Lake Water Plant about 200 yards from Shadowcliff's back door (near the North Inlet Trailhead). It is a gently uphill trail following the Tonahutu stream to Big Meadows a distance of 4.4 miles. The trail continues to Granite Falls, Haynatch Lakes and over Flattop Mountain, where it joins the North Inlet Trail and ends at Bear Lake on the east side of Rocky Mountain National Park.

Cascade Falls (North Inlet Trailhead)

Photogenic Cascade Falls is 3.4 miles into the North Inlet trail. This easy hike passes through an open meadow where marmots are often found and by a river that winds through a lodgepole pine forest. Fishing is good for small brook trout and an occasional brown trout. Allow 3-4 hours for hiking this trail. This trail is accessed within 200 yards of Shadowcliff's back door and eventually leads all the way across Flattop Mountain to Bear Lake on the east side of Rocky Mountain National Park (RMNP).

Adams Falls (East Inlet Trailhead)

This easy, 1/3-mile hike leads to a small, pleasant waterfall. If you wish to go further, past the falls, the trail is easy for about a mile and you will quickly come to a large, grassy, glaciated valley with a river running through it. Moose are sometimes sighted in this valley. Many types of wildflowers are found in this area. The East Inlet Trail is 1.3 miles from Shadowcliff and is accessed by turning left at the paved road below our entrance and driving 1.3 miles to the parking lot at the trailhead.

SELECTED HIKING TRAILS (EASY TO MODERATE)

Coyote Valley Trail (Coyote Valley Trailhead)

This 1-mile round trip, level trail is wheelchair accessible and has lots of benches for resting while contemplating nature. Follow this path alongside the Colorado River in Kawuneeche Valley. Elk can often be seen grazing on the various sedges and grasses of the area. Picnic at the tables found at one end of the trail, or fish along the trail. Allow about 45 minutes to one hour for a short but enjoyable hike. Access is gained from Trail Ridge Road about 7 miles from the western entrance to Rocky Mountain National Park.

East Shore Trail (East Shore Trailhead)

This gentle, mostly flat trail travels along the east shore of Shadow Mountain Lake to the dam, for a distance of about 3.5 miles. Flowers are abundant in mid-June through late July. It is accessed from the East Shore trailhead or from the dam site at the Green Ridge Campground as described in Shadowcliff Mountain Lookout trail.

Green Mountain Loop (Green Mountain or Onahu Trailhead)

This trail passes through the lush, marshy Big Meadow, and through forests of lodgepole pine, quaking aspen, subalpine fir and Engelmann spruce. See moose and elk foraging in the meadow; explore the cabin ruins of early settlers. This loop hike is 7.6 miles long and should take about 3 ½ - 4 hours. We suggest you start at the Green Mountain Trailhead and return on the Onahu Trail to your parked car in the Green Mountain parking lot.

SELECTED HIKING TRAILS (MODERATE TO STRENUOUS)

Lulu City (Colorado River Trailhead)

A flowered field is all that remains of this once booming mining town. Pass by the remains of log cabins and look for tailings from Shipler Mine about 2 miles into the trail. Pass by the Colorado River and through flowering meadows on this moderately difficult 7.4-mile round trip hike. The trail is accessed from the Colorado River trailhead located 10 miles inside the western entrance to Rocky Mountain National Park.

Lulu City/Yellowstone Loop (Colorado River Trailhead)

After passing Shipler's cabins, you will come to a sign that will designate Lulu City to the left and Little Yellowstone to the right. Stay right at the Y. Follow the trail all the way to the Grand Ditch. Little Yellowstone is a miniature version of the Grand Canyon of Yellowstone, formed of stark gray volcanic rock. At the Grand Ditch take a left and follow the Ditch for two miles until you see a sign that says "Stage Road, Lulu City," take the left and follow the trail down. At the bottom of the trail, take a right and head toward Lulu City. The hike is 11.6 miles in length and is a moderate to strenuous hike accessed from the Colorado River Trailhead.

Shadow Mountain Lookout Trail (East Shore Trailhead or Green Ridge Campground)

Visit an early fire lookout, resting near the summit of Shadow Mountain and experience a fantastic view of Shadow Mountain Lake, Grand Lake and Granby Lake. Park at Shadow Mountain Dam by the Green Ridge Campground in Arapaho National Forest. The trailhead is at the far side of the dam. Another entrance to this trail is from the East Shore parking lot. Allow a minimum of 4-5 hours for this hike.

SELECTED HIKING TRAILS (STRENUOUS)

Timber Lake Trail (Timber Lake Trailhead)

This lovely but challenging trail is accessed at the Timber Lake trailhead 10 miles from the RMNP western entrance directly across from the more well-traveled Colorado River Trailhead. The hike to Timber Lake is approximately 5.3 miles and gains over 2250 feet in elevation. It is scenic and opens into a broad meadow surrounded by several mountains for the last $\frac{3}{4}$ -mile before reaching the lake. Mt. Ida can also be reached from this trail, but there is no trail to follow so you should ask for specific instructions.
